Channel 11 ready to leave the MUB

By Andrea Holbrook

WENH-TV (channel 11) is moving out of the Memorial Union Building (MUB).

Architects are putting the last touches on blueprints, and the Capitol Campaign—a fund drive to raise money for a new station—is still in the final planning stages.

Arthur Singer, Channel 11's station manager, said "If the drive goes as planned, we'll move in 1986 to a University-owned site in Durham."

He said a new site has not been decided on, and he would not specify which sites in Dur-

Drunken students anger residents

By Julian Brown

Students who live on Young Drive might not be able to take the short cut along Cowell Drive for much longer since angry Durham residents are trying to close off the field to students who they say are creating vandalism and are trespassing en route to their homes or parties there.

At a Durham town meeting Monday night fourteen residents presented a petition to the selectmen requesting that a six-foot-high fence or similar barrier be put up to keep people out of the field, which Cowell Drive goes through and that a policeman continuously patrol

New phones to ring

By Cathy McCarron

The UNH Telecommunications Department will replace the old campus telephone system with a new $3,000,000 telephone system to fight increasing costs. Construction will begin next Monday at the Memorial Union Building (MUB).

Phyllis Forbes, Director of Administrative Services, said the budget, financed over ten years, will "put a cap on expected phone expenditures." In the fall of 1980, UNH's phone and equipment bill was $25,000 a month. This year it was more than $75,000, she said.

She said the University would run no risk of losing money on the new system, and should make money in the long term future.

Forbes said the initial funding for the project would come from an outside agency. She would not specify which agency, however.

She did say the money would be paid back monthly by each university department using the system.

The new project, "AT&T (American Telephone and Telegraph) System 85", is scheduled for completion by August 15th, 1985.

The main center will be located in the old maintenance wing of Stoke Hall's basement.

Bidding among contractors for Stoke's renovation has not yet been finalized, Forbes said.

She said the four and a half year program will benefit students and faculty alike. The present 1,800 line system accommodates 3,200 phones, often resulting in busy signals and aggravation.

The new system will enable every computerized phone to have its own number and every faculty member's phone to have an automatic forwarding system which, after three rings, the department secretary will be connected and will take the message.

The present rotary-style phones will be replaced with new push-button telephones. Business telephones will have a "conference" capability which will allow three party conversations simultaneously.

Every residence hall will be wired with new floor phones and a new alarm system. Only on-campus phones will be af-

No new campus parking for UNH

By David Olson

Parking on the UNH campus (core parking) will remain about the same and people should not expect any future expansion, said Felix DeVito, UNH Director of Facilities Planning.

"We have and will continue to have a walking campus and very little core parking," he said.

DeVito said he looked on the problems of parking for commuters and on-campus students who owned cars "sympathetically. We didn't look forward to the conflict...There is a parking problem in the core of the campus...We are not pretending that there isn't a problem."

He said the event which has brought the most complaints from commuters was the shifting of the traffic away from McDaniel Drive by changing it to a pedestrian area.

DeVito said "this was not done lightly. It had to be done, and it complied with the master plan."

The master plan was created in 1969. DeVito said the term

Peaceful students pledge resistance

By Kelly Anderson

The Coalition for Disarmament and Peace (CDP) and the UNH Committee on Central America (CCA) have joined forces recently in endorsing the Pledge of Resistance, a call for protest action in the event of an increase in US military involvement in Central America.

The pledge, created by 53 religious organizations nationwide, says that the individual will engage in either non-violent civil disobedience or legal protest "if the United States invades, bombs, sends combat troops, or otherwise significantly escalates its intervention in Central America."

"The current situation in Nicaragua and El Salvador is urgent," says NH Pledge Coordinator David Snyder. "Thousands are dying...and tens of thousands more will die if the Reagan Administration escalates this violence into an all-out war."

The Pledge now has the official support of 15 NH organizations, ranging from peace groups and religious organizations to concerned citizens. It was signed by over 45,000 Americans, Snyder said.

Tony Nevin, a UNH psychology professor and CDP member, said he estimates between 40 and 50 UNH students have signed this pledge.

"It will make sure people in this country are aware, and that they have some say in the actions of our military," said Terri Slanetz, a member of CDP.

Leigh Binford, a visiting professor at UNH who is teaching a class on Central America this semester, said he feels the pledge is "a manifesto to the Nicaraguan people that many Americans share their view that nations, regardless of how small and impoverished, have the right to self-determination of their internal affairs."

Students also expressed disapproval towards the pledge.

"It seems as though there are a lot of radical-type protests going on, and I don't think they're doing any good," said Sarah Davies, an art major.

Pete Fetherston, a sophomore WSBE student, said "I think everyone has a right to speak their mind, I just don't know enough about it. You hear conflicting stories all the time."

Many student responses reflect a general lack of awareness about US policy in Central America. Karen Roth, a junior psychology major, said, "I'd feel funny about signing it because I don't know enough about the situation."

There are, however, ways of finding out. The Committee on Central America (CCA) meets every Tuesday at 12:30 in Horton Rm. 325.

The CCA also sponsors a Latin American film series, which includes El Norte and When The Mountains Tremble, a film about Guatemala.

"Our central purpose is to educate people," said Cliff Wirth, spokesman for the committee.

Arnie Alpert of the NH

pledge group said, "as the armies of the United States mobilize to wage war, a non-violent army of U.S. citizens is mobilizing to wage peace."

Advisors taught service concerns

By Deborah Van Winkle

Expressing their concern for the draft, three UNH males showed up at the draft Counselor Training Class in the Grafton Room of the MUB last night.

Instructed by Lydia S. Willits, who has been trained in draft counseling since 1967, these men are learning about the draft and the Selective Service Law so that they can teach others about legal options within the system.

"We are trying to make people more aware of the draft and of their options," Willits said.

"At no time is it legal for a counselor to tell someone what to do," she said. "You cannot urge him to take stand or say 'no, don't register.' What you can do is tell them what the law is."

"I want people to realize that although registering for the draft is a law, they should think about it and realize that maybe it is an unfair one," said Counselor Trainee Stephen Schultz.

Schultz said he would like to go back to his high school over spring break and give a workshop on what he is learning.

Another trainee, Ken Mason said, "I would like to be a source of information to someone with moral and ethical reasons for not fighting in wars."

The steps to follow when choosing the stance of "con-

PSNH predicts rate hike

Public Service company predicts tripled rate hikes by the mid-1990's even if Seabrook 1 is finished.

A scenario filed with the Public Utilities Commission by Seabrook's chief owner shows a kilowatt hour of electricity which costs 8.26 cents today at 27.05 cents in 1994.

The forecast scenarios were worked out under "pessimistic assumptions" on the company's future, said Kathyline Hadley, PSNH assistant treasurer.

Craig Supply Co., Inc. pays settlement

Durham's Craig Supply Co., Inc. has paid $3,000 in the settlement of a civil claim, according to the Federal Highway Administration.

The payment comes after charges that the company violated federal hazardous material regulations were made.

Craig Supply transports hazardous materials in interstate commerce.

Haaland to take part in state education program

UNH President Gordon Haaland will take part in an education symposium as part of a state-wide conference entitled "In Search of Educational Quality."

The day-long event, scheduled for March 22, will focus on five major reports on New Hampshire education.

Participants will include both education officials and legislators from throughout the state.

Navy plane toilet seats only $100 each

Lockheed Corp. told Navy officials it would charge $100, not $640, per toilet seat for navy P-3 airplanes.

The price cut for the 54 seats will result in a $29,165 refund for the Defense Department.

The Pentagon has been criticized for paying high prices for spare parts, including $16,571 for a three-cubic foot refrigerator for crew snacks and drinks.

Legislature discusses 196-year old pay bill

The NH House Constitutional and Statutory Revision Committee thinks Congresspersons should not get pay raises unless an election intervenes first.

And the proposal which would enforce that stand has been around since 1789, when it was returned to the states as U.S. Constitutional amendment.

Ten of the 12 amendments submitted at the time were ratified and became the Bill of Rights. But only nine states have approved the proposal on congressional salaries.

Reagan turns 74

President Ronald Reagan celebrated his 74th birthday Wednesday, celebrating with his wife Nancy at a private White House dinner.

Reagan is only the second president over the age of 70; the other was Dwight Eisenhower.

At midday Wednesday, Reagan had received 5,482 cards, over 100 gifts, and many telephone calls.

More than 500 anti-apartheid protestors circled the Capitol during President Reagan's State of the Union address Wednesday night.

The protestors, wearing placards reading "Freedom in South Africa," called on Reagan and Congress to impose sanctions against white-ruled South Africa until suppression of blacks in that country ends.

Kari-Van extends half-price fare

By W. Glenn Stevens

In an attempt to find out whether lower fares really have an effect on ridership, the Kari-Van bus service has extended its half price bus fare of 25 cents from February 2 to February 9.

"Basically we wanted to get a better feel on the lower fare and what it does to ridership," said Nancy Kilbride, Kari-Van manager.

"We want to see that the cost has an actual affect on ridership," said Kilbride.

Larry Haddock, a UNH junior and commuter, said, savings isn't enough to get me to ride."

Kilbride agreed, saying last week's statistics showed there was "no affect" on bus ridership.

There will not be another extension of the Kari-Van's lower fare and the normal fare of 50 cents will be re-instituted after Feb. 9.

"I don't foresee running it any longer than the ninth," said Kilbride.

"Basically we wanted to get a better feel on the lower fare and what it does to ridership,"

"We don't have any immediate plans to increase ridership," said Kilbride, "we're just going to try to improve as we go."

Senate awards first $8,000 SAFRA loan to STVN

By Vera Mouradian

The Student Television Network (STVN) has become the first student organization to receive a loan from the Student Activity Fee Reserve Account (SAFRA).

During the Feb. 3 Student Senate meeting, STVN's proposal for the $8,200 loan was introduced and passed unanimously.

STVN plans to use the loan money to buy a new editing system—the Sony 5800 Series Editor.

The former system, which is about five years old, was wearing down due to a cleaning problem and a room situation problem, said Station Manager Michael Blood.

"Moisture, cold, and dust were getting into the system and wearing it down," he said.

A well-functioning editing system is needed, Blood said, because without the editing system no programming could be produced.

The loan comes from SAFRA, which is a common fund from which all the student organizations may draw.

Prior to SAFRA, student organizations which were under budget were allowed to keep unspent money from their previous year's budget or Past Years Account (PYR).

Now each organization is allowed to keep up to 10% of its operating budget in PYR's, the rest is put into SAFRA from common use.

SAFRA funds are issued as loans and grants. Loans must be paid back with 10% interest. The loan itself will be paid for out of STVN's operating budgets for the next two years; STVN will receive its budget request minus about half the loan for the next two years. The interest on the loan will be included in the Student Activity Fee for the next two years.

The determination by which an organization gets a grant as opposed to a loan is based on the circumstances for which it is needed.

For instance, if an organization finds it must replace equipment which was used by past students of the university and which was paid for out of past Student Activity Fee (SAF) money, that organization may qualify for a grant.

If the organization applies for money with the intention of purchasing new equipment which will be used by future students, the money must be taken as a loan.

John Davis, student body president, said it is "unfair to make future students pay for past mistakes."

The fee however, is paid by future students who will benefit in the future from the student organizations, therefore the loan interest will be charged to them.

SAFRA is meant to help make student organizations more fiscally responsible, said Brian Shea, chairperson of SAFC (Student Activity Fee Council).

SAFRA is also an attempt to keep any future increases to the SAF, which is currently $44 per year, to a minimum by providing funds for unexpected problems the student organizations may encounter during the year.

Without SAFRA, any unforeseen problems an organization might encounter during the year would come up in the following year's budget request for SAF money, Shea said.

Blood said SAFRA is a good idea because "without the SAFRA loan, STVN would have been unable to pay for the needed editing system immediately."

The SAFRA loan made the purchase possible. "STVN requested the loan," he said, "because we felt it was not a grant situation and we can afford the loan."

A few student organizations will be applying for SAFRA grants as well. These grants are to be used "to bring organizations which currently have negative PYR levels back to at least zero," Davis said.

Their current debts are due to mistakes of the past and therefore they qualify for the grants, he said. However, after the end of this fiscal year, (which STVN, page 22

Commuter senators lose four seats

By Lisa Sinatra

The Student Senate of the University of New Hampshire unanimously passed a resolution Sunday night changing the proportions of voting senators for residence halls, commuters and the Greek system.

This resolution removed four senatorial positions from commuters, adding one position to the Greek system and adding two to residence halls, one from the University Apartment Complex (UAC) and one from Babcock Hall. Commuters now have only 19 senators while residence halls have 30 and the Greek system four to combine for the 53 senators which form the Student Senate.

Davis said the reason for the changes in the number of commuter senators was the decline of students living off campus.

Davis said of the almost 10,000 undergraduates attending UNH, about 5,900 live in residence halls. This number represents 64 percent of the student body.

These percentages are used in determining how the senators are divided into the different living areas.

Davis said since 1981, three more fraternities with houses have been added to the campus.

He said there will be more students moving to fraternities and sororities in the next few years.

Every Greek and commuter senator represents 170 students, while each residence hall has one senator. Davis said only Greeks that live in their fraternities and sororities are represented by Greek senators. The brothers and sisters who live in residence halls are represented by the halls' senators.

A few of the existing fraternities are not yet housed in a permanent facility. Theta Chi and Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternities are living temporarily in apartment buildings, not designated as fraternity houses.

Phi Kappa Theta and Alpha Tau Omega fraternities own houses but they have plans to build new facilities for their members. Phi Kappa Theta will house 50 members and Alpha Tau Omega will house 54. The Greek system needs more than 170 members combined to obtain another senator when they move into their new houses. They have only 104.

Davis said he is pleased with this resolution. "This is how it has to be done to work."

"The resolution is a simple equation to allow every student to be represented as much as possible," he said.

John Burger, Durham resident—"I'm quite satisfied with the parking available on campus...A parking garage isn't needed, and it's unrealistic to think that the UNH Administration would foot the bill for one."

Sandy Winer, Pre-med graduate—"It's terrible...I can never find a parking place near to where I'm going. A parking garage would help immensely if it were centrally located. I'd definitely push for a parking garage."

Question: "What do you think about the present amount of parking available on the UNH campus? Do you think a parking garage would really help the parking situation?"

Mary Pitman, sophomore Business major—"I know (parking) is a problem for some of my friends, but it doesn't really affect me...A parking garage would probably be good if it was in a good location; within walking distance."

Mike Camire, freshman Forest Resource major—"My friend is a visitor (to UNH) and we don't know where we can park her car...It'd be a lot easier in the winter (to have a parking garage), although it may be a little expensive."

Lisa Santagate, senior Communications major—"There isn't enough parking...There's too few spaces for the people who commute and the (parking) tickets are too much. (Having a parking garage) would be a zoo; it'd be a novelty, but confusing...It'd be a mess."

NH makes money off UNH

By Jim Bumpus

A study by a UNH economist revealed that the University contributed $50.6 million to New Hampshire's economy last year.

Economics Professor Robert Puth said the University was pleased with the results of the study and hoped that they would produce a favorable image of UNH in the state legislature.

"These figures are not overstated...They are understated, if anything," said Puth.

Puth attributed much of this sum to out-of-state students.

"An out-of-state student is like a summer tourist except he pays $9000 a year," he said.

The study estimates that during fiscal year 1983-84, New Hampshire gained $29.7 million directly from non-resident UNH students, out-of-state financial aid, federal research grants, and purchases made from visitors outside the state.

Puth and doctoral candidate Jamal Nahavandi, of the Whittemore School of Business and Economics (WSBE), arrived at the $50.6 million figure by using an economic impact multiplier to gauge the "ripple" effect of income from non-New Hampshire sources.

The "ripple" effect uncovered an estimated $3.7 million in tax revenues created by UNH, its students, visitors, and employees. These revenues reduced the state's contribution to the University from $22.2 million to $18.5 million.

For every dollar the state invests, UNH generates about $2.73 for the state economy, Puth said.

He said this figure is up from last year, when UNH produced about $2.60 for every state dollar.

The study is much more refined and accurate this year, Puth said. For instance, the study determined that approximately $169,000 is accumulated by out-of-state student applications.

"The University charges $25 for saying 'no, you can't come here,'" he said.

Puth was asked to do the study by Eugene Savage, the vice chancellor for University Relations. Savage and Puth are consolidating information gathered from the same study done at Plymouth State and Keene State College.

"We want to convey to the members of the general court, the governor, and the citizenry that higher education in New Hampshire is a major industry," Savage said.

Savage said he hopes to present as much information as

Books priced too high

By Ed Garland

The Barnes & Noble Bookstore overcharged the 10 students in Math 622 $12.20 for their math books.

The text, Mathematics: An Informal Approach was mistakenly priced at $40 by the bookstore. The book actually costs $27.80.

"The book was shipped directly from the bindery at a price of about $31. The bookstore thought it was the list price," said Dr. Albert Bennett, instructor of the course and co-author of the text.

Leonard T. Nelson, professor of mathematics at Portland State University, also helped write the book.

"Most students have gotten their refunds already," Bennett said.

"All the students have to do is bring in the book and we'll give them a refund," said Glen Hoyle, assistant manager at Barnes & Noble.

Hoyle said Dr. Bennett noticed the error in price and informed the bookstore. The bookstore then corrected the Non-sexist rule aids women

By Francoise von Trapp

Linguistics instructor, Cynthia Gannett, says the Non-Sexist Language Policy is a sign of progress for UNH women.

"It got all of you here didn't it?" she said, gesturing to the entirely female audience which packed the Hillsborough-Sullivan room Wednesday.

Gannett based her support for the policy around the importance of language in society. Quoting an Arab proverb, she said, "Language is a steed that carries one into a free country."

Gannett explained that because language is "man-made" it is not without fault. She said "man-made" also meant the male gender.

The English language, therefore, was shaped by men's needs, she said.

First a generic term, the word "man" has evolved to refer to the masculine. Thus, "man's" generic uses have become demeaning to women, she said.

"Language is all of ours," said

Gannett, "and we all have a right to create it." She said that the policy does not demand new generic terms; just a non-sexist use of existing words.

The policy states that UNH "discourages the use of language and illustrations that reinforce inappropriate and demeaning attitudes, assumptions, and stereotypes about sex roles." The document includes a set of guidelines for usage of non-sexist language.

Where both sexes apply, use a generic term, or use "she" and "he" intermittently, the policy says. When the use of "man" denotes power or authority, use a generic term. If the sex is known, use it, if not, use a generic term it says. Thus, we have a chairwoman, chairman, or chairperson.

Gannett said the responses to the policy have been mixed. The National Press and the Boston Globe have praised the policy and acclaimed it as a progressive document. Those who worked on it are satisfied.

The policy, as many think, was not the work of only the Women's Commission, although Cindy Leerer of the Commission, started it. It then gained approval of President Haaland, the Academic Council, and the Student Senate. It was reviewed by all, and voted on unanimously.

"Clearly, it is the joint effort of the entire University community," Gannett said.

Gannett joked that the "best examples" of criticism come from the UNH Herald.

She cited some examples from the Sept. 17 issue. The editorial claimed the policy offended one's sensibilities in making a big issue out of what is almost a non-issue.

Prof. Charles Jellison was quoted as saying "It's a bunch of confounded foolishness. It's a very dangerous policy. It could

Babcock director clear of charges

By Michel LaFantano

After a semester of allegations, complaints, comments, and a Residential Life-sponsored review, Babcock House has finally settled back into its peaceful existence.

Babcock House (which requires that its residents be 20, the legal drinking age, and is occupied predominantly by graduate students) and its director Paul Hart became the focus of three articles in The New Hampshire last semester. The articles began when two Babcock residents, UNH students Jeff Bennett and Mark Weiss, lodged complaints against Hart following a party which was held on the fifth floor lounge of Babcock House.

Bennett and Weiss had complained Hart had shown, "a reckless disregard for the students in his (Hart's) care." (The New Hampshire Oct. 23, 1984) Bennett and Weiss also cited three University rules which Hart had allegedly broken.

Bennett, who is now running for Student Trustee, was unavailable for comment.

In a recent interview, Hart said, "all the charges had no validity." He also said that after a meeting which involved Hart, Bennett, Weiss, and Anne Miller, the Area III co-ordinator, it was decided the allegations were unfounded. This is where the situation concerning Hart ended.

Hart said no formal grievance was filed against him because there were no basis for the charges against him.

The Grievance Procedure on page 71 of the Caboodle says formal grievance may be filed any time a student believes that her/his rights, as outlined in the Declaration of Rights and Responsibilities, have been violated.

Since the allegations were determined to be false, no rights were violated and no grievance filed.

Miller said the whole situation ended in her office with the informal meeting. She said this is standard procedure before a formal grievance is filed.

Japan group forms at UNH

By Ken Fish

The new Japan Society of UNH wants to bring the Japanese culture into perspective for University students and the Durham community.

Andrew Horton, a senior interested in geography and anthropology, is the president of the Japan Society and said he wants to "promote the ideals of the Japanese culture."

"I'm just feeling the job out now," he said, adding that he hoped he could bring back the members of the old Japanese Club together to form a nucleus to get the society off the ground.

Horton said the society would introduce Japanese society through a series of films and lectures to students.

He said the first film may be shown Feb. 21. Although the first film had not been definitely decided upon, he suggested the Otokowa Tsurai Yo film series would be shown.

The "Pink Dragon" is the title of one of the films in the series.

Its main character is a Japanese salesman portrayed as a "born loser," Horton said. He is shown going through a series of confusing, comical adventures and misunderstandings.

Horton said even though the film had no English subtitles, its humor was universally understood.

Associate Professor of Philosophy and Chairperson of the Philosophy Department Yutaka Yamamoto said the name of the Japan Society of UNH was changed from the Japanese Club because the name of the Japanese Club "carries the idea that it's just for Japanese exchange students." Yamamoto said the club had sponsored several interesting activities during the past year.

"Last semester, we had a party at a club member's house...we went on a one day tour to Boston to visit a restructured Japanese home and we sponsored a lecture series on the peg-and-post construction of Japanese temples," he said.

Yamamoto said he went to Japan last year and made videotape recordings of different segments of Japanese culture.

On one tape, he said he filmed the tattoos covering the body of a member of Japan's largest gangster organization, the Yamaguchi-gumi.

This organization is the Japanese version of the Mafia.

Yamamoto said the Yamaguchi-gumi consider themselves modern day Robin Hoods, although they deal in prostitution, theft and selling drugs.

Despite the potential for student interest, Horton said, "If there isn't any interest (in the society), we just won't fight for it."

Yamamoto said the society would probably attract two groups of people: those who spoke Japanese and wanted to practice their language skills in a group and those students who wanted an understanding of what Japanese culture is.

started in 1957. Its founder and president, Dick Randall, started the operation at the age of eighteen.

The organization arrived in a coach they use for transportation of the handicapped and the elderly. This deluxe coach is supported in part by monies donated by the Sigma Beta fraternity.

The Remme Association provides free transportation and recreation for handicapped people throughout New England.

Fraternity Treasurer Rick Berardino said Sigma Beta has given about two thousand dollars to the charity already.

"We want to raise one thousand dollars during this semester," said Berardino. "This will be the fourth semester we've been involved with them."

Sigma Beta decided to support the Remme Association since they were looking to support a needy cause. Berardino had been involved with the association before and suggested the group to the fraternity.

"We know exactly where our money is going," said Aaron Ferraris. Ferraris explained the charity operates only on donations and all of its employees are volunteers, with the exception of a full-time secretary.

Sigma Beta plans to raise more money this semester with a bike-a-thon. Ferraris said he thought the event would be held near the fraternity pledging period.

"Something like this helps us as a fraternity too," said Ferraris.

Berardino said the money the fraternity had donated went, in part, last summer to help a mentally-retarded boy go to summer camp. Berardino said the summer camp was supported by the Remme Association.

Ferraris said the association usually receives donations of fifty dollars or less.

He said Sigma Beta was the first organization to donate more than a thousand dollars at a time.

Berardino said bingo is the association's main money-raiser.

Cloutier shut down Hawthorne's potent offense and UNH retained the 2-1 victory.

UNH had advanced into the playoffs as the number one seed after compiling the highest point total of all 18 teams. They accomplished this feat by defeating Castleton State College 5-0, Newport Soccer Club 3-1, U. of Maine Farmington 2-1, and Skidmore College 4-1.

One of the main reasons for UNH's success was its high powered offense led by freshman sensation Darren Corrini, who netted 5 goals in the first 4 games. But it wasn't only Corrini. The entire team contributed with 5 different players scoring in the Castleton game.

Over the entire tournament UNH outscored its opponents 17 to 5 while Bubba made 41 saves, a truly great performance by one of the most unspectacular sports teams here at UNH. With efforts like the one at Lyndon State, the team is sure to earn the respect of other colleges at least, even if its own school fails to acknowledge their stellar performances.

The residents complained of students repeatedly taking down street signs, siphoning gas from cars, tearing down lamp posts and fences.

Durham Police Chief Paul Gowen said a committee was appointed by the selectmen to determine what the town would do.

"Right now we're just making more frequent checks in that area," he said.

"95 percent of the kids are ok," said Marshall Shields, a resident who lives on Glassford Lane off Cowell Drive, "but it's the ones who go through and do the damage who should be stopped."

Shields also said he does not feel a fence should be put up to keep students from going through the field, but that the land should be posted with "no trespassing" signs.

However, Chief Gowen said, "No Trespassing" signs are taken down as quickly as they're put up."

Shields said, "I think the kids going through the field have a good thing going, but they've abused it."

ONE WAY COACH
FARE, FRI.—SUN.

We've just lowered our fares to New York nearly 50%. To just $19, coach, Friday to Sunday. Monday to Thursday it's only $25.

That's the best travel value going, peak or off-peak. And when you bring the kids along, you'll save even more—children under 12 go for half price.

But money is just part of the reason for taking Amtrak. You see, the train actually makes travel a pleasant experience. Our spacious, reclining seats are like no others.

And where else can you find aisles wide enough for a leisurely stroll?

Not to mention our Amcafe, where you can get a sandwich, snack or beverage, whenever you like.

Oh, there's one more thing. On Amtrak, you can go from downtown Boston or the Route 128 Station to midtown Manhattan, Newark, or suburban Amtrak stations.

So the next time you're headed to the Big Apple, call your travel agent or call Amtrak at 1-800-USA-RAIL. And ask about a fare and a travel experience that can't be beat.

Editorial

Eleven out, students in

Channel 11 (WENH-TV) will be moving from the MUB "sometime in the near future". They will go to a location they have not yet released the name of. Public Television of New Hampshire has finally got a new home and that will hopefully be good news for the students at UNH.

Presently the television station occupies virtually a quarter of the MUB which will hopefully be available for the use of MUB administration to provide a broader range of services and programs to the students and the student activity organizations. This is, after all, a student union building.

Some of the potential uses are academic. Many times students are forced to take exams in auditorium-style rooms without desks to write on. Perhaps the new space will be able to accommodate this need and alleviate this unfair testing atmosphere.

Other uses would be incorporating the bookstore into the MUB, thus freeing the space in Hewitt Hall for academic use.

The Student Television Network would also benefit immensely from an allocation of space in the lower level of the MUB. As it stands now, this organization is jammed into a glorified closet. This space limitation prevents these students from becoming a truly viable small television club. With added space and the benefits that would bring, communications majors, who are already treated with dubious priority, would have an additional opportunity for training in their future field.

Channel 11 now provides some internships and hands-on training, but there is no doubt that more practical experience will only help these students when they enter the search for jobs.

Channel 11 will remain in Durham, so the opportunities now present at the station will not be lost.

Students should watch this situation closely as it develops further in order to insure that they are not overlooked when it comes time for the division of the new space. The MUB is already a well run and important part of student life at UNH. More space for the students to learn and grow will only serve to help all the students at this University.

Letters

DWI

To the Editor:

I am currently enrolled in a criminology course at the University of New Hampshire. In the lecture today Professor Helgemoe talked about Driving While Intoxicated (DWI) and its consequences. I am a Nationally Registered Emergency Medical Technician (NREMT) and volunteer my services to the Wolfeboro Rescue Squad. I have been to many Motor Vehicle Accidents but have never been aware of some of the consequences of driving under the influence/driving while intoxicated. I thought that seeing the drinking age going up to 21 from 20 that maybe someone would write a letter to the editor and emphasize some of the consequences of DWI. I knew that being arrested for DWI was serious and that Aggravated DWI was even more serious, but I had no idea that some of the upcoming data were so intense.

Do you know your limit to how many drinks you can have within three hours according to your body weight? If you are in the range of 100 lbs. you can have 2 drinks, 120-140 you can have 3, 160-180 you can have 4, 200 plus can have 6.

Do you know the consequences for DWI first offense? You will lose your license for a minimum of 3 months (90 days) and a maximum of 24 months (2 years). Your jail sentence will be a minimum of 0 mos. and a maximum of 12 months in jail. Your fine will be at a minimum $300.00, and a maximum of $1,000.00. At the very least you will pay $300.00, lose your license for 3 months, and will spend no time jail. On the other hand the very worst will be losing your license for 24 months (2 years), paying a $1,000.00 fine, and spending 12 months (1 year) in jail. And that's only as far as the court system is concerned. You will be paying through the nose on lawyers, raised insurance rates, plus for first offense you will have to attend and complete the Community Alcohol Information Program (CAIP) which will cost you, the offender, between $215.00 and $275.00.

The cost of the lawyer(s) will cost anywhere from $300.00 to $2,000.00 Your insurance will go up at a minimum of $1,440.00. Once you've been arrested for DWI you will be considered an extreme risk as far as insurance agencies are concerned.

Let's look at the total for DWI, first offense, at the worst: 24 months (2 years) loss of license, 12 months in jail, $1,000.00 in fines CAIP $275.00, $2,000.00 for a good lawyer. And the big set back of $1440.00 raise in insurance rates.

TOTAL: $4,715.00 + 1 year in jail + 2 years loss of license.

Now let's look at DWI, second offense. There will be a minimum of 3 years loss of license and a maximum of loss of license for LIFE. You will spend a minimum of 7 days in jail (mandatory) and a maximum of 12 months in jail. Your fine will be at a minimum of $500.00 and a maximum of $1,000.00. The CAIP will not be mandatory as it is in the first offense. Your lawyer will cost you between $500.00 and $5,000.00. Your insurance will also be raised a minimum of $1,440.00 and probably higher. Also your insurance company has the right at this time to reject your policy and you may never be able to get automobile coverage again!

DWI is not a crime, it's not a misdemeanor, it's a violation. Therefore you cannot be jailed for more than 12 months (1 year).

Let's look at the very worst you can get for DWI 2nd offense. A maximum of 3 years loss of license, a maximum of 12 months in jail, a maximum of 1,000.00 in fines, $5,000.00 for a good lawyer (by now you'll need one!) and $1,440.00 for your insurance, and that's if they'll let you come back on their policy.

TOTAL: $7,440.00 + 1 year in jail + life loss of license.

The totals above for first and second offense DWI do not include the amount of money you will be losing while spending time in jail, and the amount of money you will lose by having no personal transportation.

CAN YOU AFFORD THE CONSEQUENCES OF DWI???????

Protest

To The Editor:

Maureen O'Neil seems to assume that UNH students are unconcerned and apathetic simply because they don't get involved in 1960's type protest marches. She is, as usual, wrong. True, we don't march, but it isn't because we are apathetic. We don't march because we have outgrown the days when political or social commitment was measured in arrest records and how long it had been since you last took a bath. To be quite blunt, your ignorance is pathetically funny. The only peace that ever came through disarmament was the peace of occupation. Czechoslovakia and Poland achieved peace through disarmament when they were confronted with the threat of German aggression, didn't they? By being disarmed they were spared the necessity of fighting a long war. They did lose a short one, to a country that was officially disarmed after WWI.

Peace will never come through disarmament. Disarmament might come through peace. Unfortunately, we are a long way from achieving peace. Overthrowing and governing the capitalist west is a basic tenet of Soviet society. We don't trust the Soviets any more than they trust us. Nuclear weapons are the symptom, not the disease. Eliminate Soviet aggression and the U.S. will disarm, eliminate Soviet paranoia and the Soviets will disarm. To concentrate on the weapons themselves is foolish and futile. Nuclear weapons are basic technology, and it is far easier to banish a habit of thought (I.E. national aggression) than a piece of knowledge. Remember that there is only one deadly weapon: The human mind. Everything else, from the fist or pointed stick to the H-bomb is merely a tool.

The U.S. is not the problem. Unlike the Soviet Union, we haven't conquered any countries lately, we don't need fences to keep our people in, we haven't killed more than 120 million people since 1920. If you want to demonstrate, why don't you do it at the nearest Soviet consulate: there are no people demonstrating for disarmament (or anything else) in the Soviet Union, because there protestors are shot.

To be even blunter, Ms. O'Neil, we aren't interested in joining your self-indulgent little guilt trip. Like the Green party that you so evidently adore, you have nothing constructive to contribute to the world. True, the Greens are antiwar and anti-nuclear. In fact, they are anti-everything. The problem is that they aren't for anything. They have yet to offer England or Germany anything except protest for protest's sake. Protest for its own sake was one of the blots of the 60's. Our political system is based on participation, not defiance. Students today aren't apathetic, they've just outgrown the tantrums of the 60's.

To The Editor:

This letter concerns Chris Fauske's University Forum article published on February 1, 1985.

On a very general basis this article criticizes the policies of apartheid in South Africa. Granted, the black people should be entitled to all the same rights as the white minority and should have a voice in their government as well. However, what the article failed to mention and what most Americans don't realize is that each day there are hundreds perhaps thousands of blacks who migrate INTO South Africa in order to escape their own repressive Marxist governments. Obviously, this makes apartheid the lesser of two evils. I would also like to add that President Reagan is working behind the scenes to get the South African government to abolish their racial policies while at the same time maintaining close political and economic ties with that country.

One final point. Quite often you hear Ted Kennedy and his family and "Tip" O'Neal criticizing apartheid and running campaigns against it. Yet you never seem to hear them speak out against the atrocities being committed by the Soviet forces in Afghanistan! Why is that?

Another Option—the U A C

By Nancy Gaudet

Editor's note: The month of March at UNH is traditionally known for confusion and exasperation as thousands of students are forced to scramble in search of housing. This year will be no different. For this reason, Nancy Gaudet, manager of the University Apartment Complex (UAC) has prepared the following guidelines for students who are interested in living in these apartments.

Applications for space in the Undergraduate Apartment Complex are being accepted at the Complex Office until Thursday, February 14, 1985. Offers of spaces available for the 1985-1986 academic year will be made between February 18 to February 28, according to Nancy Gaudet, Manager of the Undergraduate Apartment Complex.

Presently, our waiting list is extensive. There are approximately 313 women and 148 men waiting for space in the Complex. The projected number of available spaces will be in the vicinity of 200. All vacancies are filled according to established University eligibility priorities. First priority for spaces will be given to residence hall students who are currently on the waitlist and meet the requirements.

The actual assigning of spaces depends largely on exactly where the vacancies are after the internal change process occurs within the Complex. In general, Residence Hall students who signed in groups of four will be assigned first, according to the lowest waitlist number. After all foursomes have been exhausted, pairs will be matched and assigned. After these categories have been exhausted, triples and single applicants will be assigned.

The assignment process for the apartments occurs during February so that those who have not been offered space can go through the residence hall room draw process, according to Gaudet. The important thing for residence hall students to remember is that if they have not been offered a space in the apartments by March 4th, they should then go ahead and apply for housing in the traditional halls if they want to live on campus next fall.

Students will receive hand-delivered letters from the Complex Manager between Monday, February 18th and Friday, February 22, according to Gaudet. Those people must bring $200.00 deposits and sign contracts in the Complex Office between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. on Monday, February 25th to reserve a space.

A second round of offers will go out on February 26th and run until Thursday, February 28th. Second round contracts and $200.00 deposits will be collected on February 28th at the Complex Office.

No one is guaranteed a space in the Complex until they have paid the $200.00 deposit and signed a contract.

Waitlist applications will remain active throughout the summer at the Apartment Complex Office.

Nancy Gaudet is the Complex Manager of the University Apartment Complex.

Snowy Nightmares

By Vera Mouradian

I have this re-occurring nightmare. It is a nightmare which has haunted me daily since the snows came. ("A daytime nightmare?" you may ask. Well, perhaps a "daymare" then?) This daymare always involves stairs; stairs and snow to be precise.

Now don't get me wrong, I like snow—I like it a lot. And stairs are...well...stairs! It's the combination of the two—snowy stairs—snowy icy, unshoveled stairs, that bothers me!

In this nightmare (or daymare), I walk to and from my classes on well plowed to not-so-well-plowed paths which inevitably lead to the dreaded snowy, unshoveled stairs. At these stairs I am confronted with a dilemma, a dilemma which is not confined to the first step but rather includes the whole staircase: "Just where do I place my feet so I make any semblance of progress?"

You see, these snowy stairs seem to develop, over the course of days and of snowstorms and therefore over the course of my daymare, into ant-sized ski trails on which the human foot has no place! On some stairs there is, of course, an inch or so of cleared space or thin-layered snow and it is for these sparse spots that my feet aim. But, it involves a struggle!

Going up the icy, snowy stairs, I struggle to reach the top stair without slipping back to start too often. Coming down, I struggle to reach the bottom, the finish, without overshooting my goal!

The struggle in my daymare, however, is only secondary to the fear! Always in my daymare, I have this terrible fear! My fear involves an image of myself placing a foot on one of these snowy, icy stairs only to find myself within seconds, flying through the air like a bird, (but with considerably less grace,) and landing "plumph!" on my derriere! Of course, there's also the equally embarrassing and much more dangerous possibility of landing on a body part with less padding...like my head...

Daily I am confronted with these struggles; daily with this fear. There seems no escape from this daymare while the winter lasts. But, I have hope! I hope that someday soon, some brave soul(s) will help me to solve my dilemma and escape my struggles and fears by transforming those snowy, icy stairs to clear or shoveled, sanded stairs. Then my daymare will end.

Computer Blues

By Ken Fish

To the incoming freshmen of 1986: go and buy a computer.

Yes, UNH has finally entered the higher circle who, along with Governor John Sununu, say there should be a turkey in every pot and a computer in every student's room.

However, the question in most students' minds is which one gets stewed.

The Personal Computer Planning Committee of UNH represents the forefront of this technological tsunami which threatens to burst upon the University's microcosm of pre-1900 buildings and provincial mentality.

The first rumbles and ripples have already reached our shores in the burgeoning "Progress in Progress" program being advertised by ancient two by fourteen and crushed concrete strewn by walkways and strange blue and red streaked signs on our roads.

Earth Sciences Professor Ted Loder, chairperson of the "PCPC" committee, did admit there might be some minor problems in getting students to buy computers.

"It's hard to force students to do something when it requires money," he said. Yes, that could be true, considering it does represent about 10 percent of the cost of four years at UNH. It amounts only to about $2,500...for the first year.

To help subvert the average student's reticence to spend a few more dollars, Governor Sununu wants to use almost $1 million in "excess" state money to supply New Hampshire schools with computers. This way, young children can learn to play with a mouse while they struggle along with reading, writing and arithmetic.

Today, in many areas, computers are indispensable. Versatility and the term "general purpose" are already catchwords in the media and in the home. The possibilities for their uses still remain unforeseen.

In Alvin Toffler's Future Shock, our world is described as experiencing a technological revolution which is exponentially outstripping our social structure. He says some of us suffer from future shock in the same way the Tanzanians had culture shock; most of them died.

It doesn't appear that any UNH student would keel over the first time his user-friendly computer came on and printed "Hi!", but there may be a few, who still peck away on a portable 1923 L.C. Smith typewriter and secretly dream about actually having a machine which runs on magic electricity.

Sure, go ahead and spend the $500,000 to build clusters, rewire dorm rooms and educate professors in programming. With Zenith offering student discounts on computers (matching

Somewhere or bust

By Kris Snow

Spring break, I decided on about January 24, would be different this year.

No more sleeping half the day away and sitting around the rest. No more lamenting for seven straight days that I hadn't taken the time in January to plan an exotic tropical vacation to forget English papers and newspaper jobs.

This time, I decided, I'd take that time. And on March 15, I'd pack my bathing suit and suntan lotion and head for some honest-to-God 80-degree weather. I had a good seven weeks to plan what would undoubtedly be the best week of my college career. Nothing would stop me.

Maybe.

OK, so the first travel agent said it'd cost $505 to get from Boston to St. Thomas and back again. (I'd picked St. Thomas—St. John, actually—because along with my vow to go somewhere warm was the firm, set-in-cement conviction that my junket would take me nowhere near the state of Florida.)

I responded to the ticket price calmly and maturely—I even used the common sense which thankfully pops up every now and then to combat my frightfully impulsive streak. I told the travel agent, in so many words, that I'd take my VISA card elsewhere.

I only cringed for a minute at the second offer: St. Thomas for $350, round-trip. The price wasn't acceptable, not by any stretch of the imagination, but at least it didn't threaten to wipe out my entire life savings.

Saying no to that one was a little harder.

Then came the semi-clincher, the remotely affordable plane ticket which would take me to a land of sunshine-without-The-Button. Yessirree, if I was willing to leave Boston at around 5:30 a.m. on a chartered plane bound for San Juan, switch over to a rinky-dinky airline for the jump to St. Thomas, and repeat the slightly hassled routing a week later, the trip was mine for under $300.

Sure, it'd cost a little more than Peoples, but this was the Virgin Islands, not just another boring state. And if I sacrificed things like clothes and Diet Pepsi for the next year or so, I could have my non-Floridan sun.

There were, of course, certain restrictions the travel agent asked me to remember. Obviously, there had to be an open flight, and then the trip depended on whether I could travel on a Sunday and return on a Sunday, and leave in early morning and return in early morning, and pay a deposit (non-refundable, of course) and take-a-risk-'cause-the-airline-flying-from-San-Juan-is-about-to-go-out-of-business.

Student Senator

Student Senate

The Student Senate is the governing body and voice of the student population at the University of New Hampshire. Senators are elected and they represent each of three living situations. Each residence hall has one senator and there is appropriate commuter and Greek system representation.

The senate is divided into seven councils that each address a unique facet of student life. The councils deal with life in the residence halls, off-campus living, academic policies, financial activities of the University, student organizations, student services, and external University relations. It provides students with a wide range of opportunities to get involved with their governance system whether it is on campus, or in Concord, our state capitol.

The Student Senate is responsible for determining and regulating the Student Activity Fee. This year for the first time since the Student Activity was initiated, there was a decrease in the fee each undergraduate student pays. The senate monitors all mandatory fees to insure proper student input on their development. It also provides students with legal advice free of charge.

Over the past session, the senate has had many guest speakers including the Governor of the state, state Senators, and other prominent people from New Hampshire. Communication has improved between the students and the administration at the University and within the system because of the efforts of the senate.

Participation is encouraged in all activities. More information can be obtained through our office, Room # 130, Memorial Union.

The purpose of the Student Press is to provide an alternative medium for UNH students to gain experience in journalism, creative writing, advertising, and photographic and graphic design. Staff members will gain valuable leadership and management skills through the production of the Commuter Advocate, a weekly source of commuter news; Aegis, a fiction and poetry forum; Catalyst, a non-fiction general interest publication; Celestial Visions, a contemporary science fiction journal; and Visual Arts, a photographic and/or graphic arts journal.

In addition, the Student Press offers technical advice and assistance to any non-SAF organization which has a well thought-out idea for a magazine or publication.

Cool-Aid is a crisis intervention hotline, drop-in center, and referral service. The purpose of Cool-Aid is to provide these services through telephone and/or personal contact for the University community. Our aim is to assist the individual during a crisis, in an effort to aid him/her to deal with their situation. We also provide callers with referrals for further counseling or other professional assistance. In addition, we offer the students of UNH a telephone tapeline service which enables the caller to acquire information and understanding about various topics of interest or concern which may be affecting his/her life (This service is jointly sponsored by Cool-Aid and the Counseling and Testing Center).

Membership is open to all students who successfully complete the training and experience in crisis intervention counseling.

Programming Fund Organization

The purpose of the Programming Fund Organization is to serve the needs of the non-SAF recognized student organizations at the University of New Hampshire. Through the administration of the Programming Fund, the PFO seeks to provide programming funds to UNH non-SAF organizations. Any recognized student organization is eligible to apply for funding for a program or event through PFO. A proposed program or activity must have the potential of reaching all UNH undergraduate students. The membership of the PFO shall aid these organizations in the formation and the finalization of their proposals and shall act as a liaison at the SAFC meetings. Through the funding and advising provided, the PFO also serves to increase the visibility, activity, and professionalism of recognized student organizations.

The purpose of the Student Press is to provide a medium for UNH students to gain experience in journalism, creative writing, advertising, photography and graphic design. Staff members will gain valuable leadership and management skills through the production of the Commuter Advocate, a semi-monthly news-magazine which emphasizes those issues pertaining to the commuter and non-traditional student body; Aegis, a fiction and poetry journal; Catalyst, a non-fiction general interest publication; and Visual Arts, a photographic and/or graphic arts journal. Such publications will benefit the University of New Hampshire by accommodating the diverse tastes and interests of its student body.

THE GRANITE

The Granite, an entirely student run publication, shall provide the university community with a yearbook that gives the student body the opportunity to express the feeling, memories and events of the university year through literary, artistic, and creative illustration. The Granite provides the student body with opportunities to gain experience in the fields of production, business, photography, journalism, administration, and advertising. Membership to the Granite is open to any undergraduate student at the University of New Hampshire.

MUSO

M.U.S.O.'s primary responsibility is to develop student programs for the University Community in the Memorial Union Building. It also helps develop sound student leadership through the planning and execution of these programs. The purpose of M.U.S.O. is to provide the organization and administration of cultural, educational, and social activities such as popular and entertaining films, arts (i.e. theater, dance, and exhibits), lectures, photography, and darkroom instruction, diversified MUB programming, primarily, but not restricted to the MUB PUB, and various events and services upon request from the University community.

Carnival gets cool response

By Pat O'Dell

Students are responding to this year's Winter Carnival theme with a mix of confusion and nostalgia.

"I think the sixties should have been left unremembered. Torch runs and bonfires? I don't exactly know how that relates to the sixties," said Sophomore Jon Ekstrom.

Winter Carnival events include a torch run sponsored by Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity, a presentation of the movie The Big Chill, and a snow volleyball tournament.

The theme in question is "The Big Chill: A Tribute to the Sixties."

To Senior Mike Tivey, the theme choice is a fun opportunity.

"A lot of fun things happened in the sixties and they deserve to be promoted. The sixties were a fun time—the end of the fun times. There was a lot less confusion as to what the country was doing, said Tivey.

"It's obvious the Winter Carnival is going to focus on the positive aspects (of the time).

It's not going to degrade an era," he said.

"I really don't think people are going to put up snow sculptures of blacks protesting...When I think of the sixties I think of Elvis Presley movies," Tivey said nostalgically.

"I think it's horrible," said Junior Mark Schrader. "The whole thing with the sixties—it offered a lot, but not the kind of things you can use for ice sculptures and things like that."

"I don't think most of the students here now remember much about the sixties anyway," Schrader said.

"It seems to me it was a real faddish time that most people don't remember much about," he added.

Senior Mike Miller said he thinks the sixties were both "traumatic and interesting."

"A lot of people enjoy the sixties. I know I do; I think some tribute should be made. I don't know if the Winter Carnival is an appropriate representation. What else are they doing, besides attaching the name to it?" Miller said.

Dudley is still cuddley fighting temptation

By Consuelo B. Congreve

Micki & Maude, A Columbia Pictures release starring Dudley Moore, Ann Reinking, Amy Irving, and Richard Mulligan. Directed by Blake Edwards, screenplay by Jonathan Reynolds. Rated PG-13.

Dudley Moore has risen above the plague of bad movies he has recently endured to turn in an endearing performance in the whimsical comedy Micki & Maude.

Moore is Rob Salinger, a reporter for "America, Hey!" an "Entertainment Tonight" kind of show, who is deeply in love with his wife, and also his wife.

Rob is a victim of circumstances and his own loving heart. He can't seem to help himself in his affair with Maude. She tells him she's pregnant, and he agrees to divorce his wife. He wants to tell his wife Micki, but just as he is about to she announces she is pregnant. He decides to tell neither and to juggle them.

But fate is against him.

Who else could run into Maude's parents on the way into his wedding with Micki? Who else could take his pregnant wife to her obstetrician only to run into his pregnant wife at the obstetrician's? Who else could have two wives giving birth in the same hospital at the same time in adjoining rooms?

Moore is his usual adorable self throughout the movie. He creates sympathy. It is obvious that he is unhappy about the state of his affairs, but he loves state of his affairs, but he loves both his wives so deeply he doesn't want to hurt either one.

He didn't mean to cheat on Micki, but she was so busy at the law firm that he rarely saw her, and Maude was so sweet and beautiful that he couldn't resist her. His eyes show the pain he feels when he thinks about losing either one.

Ann Reinking is a dynamic and poised Micki. She quits her law firm to have the baby, but plans, designs, and executes a designer catalogue for pregnant women from her bed. When she is admitted to the hospital in throes of labor pains, she asks for a telephone and a stenographer.

Amy Irving is the playful and youthful Maude, a cellist who also likes to watch monster movies. In the midst of her audition for a major Philharmonic Orchestra, she shudders and calmly explains, "My water just broke."

Director Blake Edwards filled his film with excellent visual gags. Maude takes Rob to visit her professional wrestler father "Gorilla" Muldoon (H.B. Hagerty) in a locker room. There the diminutive Moore is dwarfed by such august personages as Jack "Wildman" Armstrong, Chief Jay Strongbow, and Andre the Giant. Andre, who measures at least two feet over Moore, lays his anvil like hands on his shoulders. This heightens Salinger's fear that Maude's father will find out about Micki and kill him.

Another notable scene is between Micki's obstetrician and his nurse. Wallace Shawn, the cuddly but wimpy guy with a lisp best remembered from My Dinner with Andre is the doctor to Lu Leonard's large and imposing figure of a nurse. "I worship your body like a French cathedral" she breathes, and the two embrace in a clumsy but passionate kiss. The very absurdity of the whole situation makes this the funniest shot in the movie.

A fine supporting cast is rounded out by Richard Mulligan as Rob's best friend Leo. Leo is the only person Rob can confide in, and is the best man in both of Rob's weddings. He tries to help Rob out of the mess, and supplies moral support and advice.

The movie keeps the audience constantly guessing whether the wives will ever discover one another, and hoping for Rob's sake, that they will not.

Dudley Moore plays reporter Rob Salinger, who finds one wife after another, in Micki & Maude.

Record reviews: something old and something new

The Waterboys
A Pagan Place
Island
By Bill Millios

The Waterboys make the kind of music even your parents would like. With roaring saxophones and horns held together by refreshing piano and guitar work, their music is the closest thing you will find to a rock orchestra. Excluding the E Street Band, no group has a thicker or bigger sound.

Bandleader Mike Scott's lyrics are something else, however. Face it, anyone who likens God to a boy scout or pokes fun at churches wouldn't be welcome in most homes.

Yet A Pagan Place, the band's first full-length album, has nothing to do with devil worshipping as its title implies. Sure, most of the song's oblique lyrics will leave you confused in the end, not knowing what to make of it all. But from start to finish, A Pagan Place is filled with powerfully brave and passionate music.

You'll find out soon enough that Scott is rock's newest romantic. In the album's opener, "Church Not Made With Hands," Scott affectionately sings, "There she walks in fresh fields/Her tracks are on the land/She is everywhere and no place..."

This song displays the Waterboys at their best as it powerfully sets the album's theme. Led by the driving piano of Karl Wallinger along with Kevin Wilkinson's snappy drumming and Scott's "Who-like horns, this is only a sample of the music which follows.

In a way, the Waterboys are the dark side of U2. Both Scott and U2's Bono are similar soul singers who shell out their deep personal feelings. However, where Bono constantly looks ahead to the future, Scott appears bothered by his past. In "Rags", whose opening guitar riffs resemble the Edge, Scott pessimistically confesses "And there's no one to blame but me."

"Somebody Might Wave Back" goes one step further into Scott's self-doubting views. "Been awake all night/counting the hours till sunrise/Drawing patterns of a table top/And a lip light gaze—my mouth just dropped...what do I have to lose?/Somebody might wave back."

In "Red Army Blues", Scott

assumes the character of a helpless Russian soldier in World War II. It's a stunning diary that details the horrors of Russian soldiers under Stalin's rule. In the end, after accusing Stalin of demoralizing them, Scott realizes that the only thing he's left with is "the brute will to survive."

The bouncy title-track based around Scott's biting acoustic strumming closes the record in triumphant style. Finally Scott wonders "How did he come here?/Who gave him the key...to the Pagan Place?"

You'd never know that he just made a mini-masterpiece.

John Fogerty
Centerfield
Warner Brothers

By Bill Millios

It's hard not to like Centerfield. For all of its predictable moments, John Fogerty's first release in ten years is still an amazingly strong comeback album.

Some of it may sound too much like old Creedence but there's nothing wrong with that. Don't forget that they were one of rock's greatest singles bands and Fogerty was its creative force.

Centerfield is a solo album in the truest sense. Fogerty played every instrument, sung all the words and handled the production. Everything works brilliantly. The playing throughout is top-notch and the sound is refreshingly clear.

"The Old Man Down The Road" kicks off the album. With its bluesy feel and lazy guitar licks, the song may be a bit annoying at first. But it grows on you.

"Rock and Roll Girls" follows and it'll probably be the next single. This easygoing track's laid-back tempo and lyrics show how content Fogerty has become. "If I had my way/I'd shuffle off to Buffalo/Sit by the lake/And watch the world go by."

"Big Train (From Memphis)" and "Mr. Greed" both let Fogerty have fun. The former's lyrics sound like a rockabilly standard and the latter allows Fogerty to rip loose with some vicious power chords.

Borrowing Creedence's "Have You Ever Seen the Rain?" chord pattern, "I saw it on T.V." is Fogerty's account of T.V.'s effect on him through the years. In a haunting verse remembering J.F.K., Fogerty sings, "A young man from Boston/Set sail The New Frontier/And we watched the dream/Dead-end in Dallas/They buried innocence that year."

The title track, with its playful hand-clapping, sets the album's theme. When Fogerty says "Put me in coach, I'm ready to play" he's not addressing the baseball world but the rock world in declaring his return.

It's fitting that the funky "Vanz Kant Danz" ends the album. Not only is it the record's most daring song, with its reggae-influenced choruses, but the most fiery. It is Fogerty's sharp attack on former Fantasy Records president Saul Zaentz, who Fogerty believes cheated Creedence and himself of millions in royalties for their hit songs. Fogerty sneers "Vanz can't dance/But he'll steal your money/Watch him and he'll rob you blind."

Centerfield proves one thing—that John Fogerty is once again making dynamic music. For that alone, we should all be grateful.

Looking at legs: a fashion preview

By Pat O'Dell

Skirts are getting shorter; a lot shorter.

That's good news for some and a panic alert for others.

This year's spring fashions, whether from Paris, New York or other assorted points on the globe, all end well above the knee.

And with sarong skirts enjoying a strong resurgence in popularity, legs will be hard to hide in the coming months.

Not that most men will object to that. An informal poll taken at UNH shows that two thirds of the men you meet on the street will look first at your legs. And top fashions designers, most of whom are male coincidentally, are designing clothes with that fascination in mind.

Calvin Klein, for example, produced a black cashmere dinner dress that barely skims the thighs. A steal at $482, but one that wouldn't even allow you to bend over if you dropped your credit card.

Other proponents of the shorter skirt include Geoffrey Beene and Oscar de la Renta, as well as the unforgettable Stephen Sprouse.

Sprouse, one of the best known British designers, specializes in ultra-bright colors. One of his current favorites seems to be fuschia. (Vogue calls it neon-pink, but it still looks like Fuschia.) Both short and bright, his dresses are certainly eye catching.

But don't be fooled. Legs aren't the only thing that will be exposed in some of these clothes. Backs, shoulders and midriffs will also be bared. Many dresses especially for evenings have strategically placed cutouts.

Exposure, of course, is not the most important quality a dress can possess, even if it is the most noticeable. And it isn't even the most striking one these clothes have.

Precisely what that quality is in a subject of some debate. According to Julie Hatfield, fashion columnist for The Boston Globe, this spring's fashions are most striking in their femininity.

They certainly are attractive. They are sleek and very sensual. They are also very simple.

And this contradicts the image many have of feminine clothing. These clothes are conspicuously lacking in ruffles, frills, bows and puffy shoulders.

Perhaps they will help develop a new definition of femininity.

ham were being considered.

Singer said the decision to move was not affected by the Sunset Review Committee's recommendations to make Channel 11 a state agency.

The Sunset Review is a NH legislative committee which determines the efficiency of state agencies and suggests solutions for problems they may have.

Singer said he hopes to start the Capitol Campaign drive in several months and complete it within six to eight months of starting.

The projected cost for the move is $2.3 million. The building itself will cost $1.5 million and the rest of the money will go to moving and installation fees, Singer said.

Channel 11 is currently situated in three locales: the offices and equipment are stored in the basement of the MUB, the Auction Center off Pettee Brook Lane, and the general offices across the bridge in the Pettee Brook Building.

Singer said the new station will allow Channel 11 to centralize its offices and provide a better working environment for its employees.

On December 28th, "Channel 11 almost lost $750,000 worth of equipment," due to a water pipe bursting in the MUB, Singer said.

Seventeen to twenty thousand dollars of the equipment was lost outright, and the rest of the equipment has a reduced life span," he said.

It was the second time the station's offices in the MUB have been flooded. The first flooding happened in 1981 and was also caused by broken water lines.

The new building "will be a safe place for the station's equipment since the building is being constructed with TV in mind," Singer said.

Temperature fluctuation, electrical surges and dust have also been problems in the MUB, he added.

Space considerations are a big factor in the decision to make the move, Singer said.

"The MUB is just much too small to stay... The new building will also allow the station to expand into other aspects of TV work that we are currently not involved in," he said.

Director of the MUB Jeffrey Onore, said he would like to see the space vacated by Channel 11 going toward student use.

Peter Donovan, student senate chairperson of the Financial Affairs and Administration Committee, said, "I would be really surprised if at this point they (Channel 11) didn't move... Considering the cost of equipment, the MUB environment is not conducive to maintaining it."

Donovan said the Student Television Network (STVN), who are also housed in the MUB was experiencing problems similar to Channel 11's.

STVN has also had problems with dust and temperature fluctuations, and the burst water pipe on Dec. 28 damaged one of their editing machines. STVN's business manager Ed Martin, said his station is purchasing a suspended ceiling which will cut down on dust and temperature fluctuations.

"Master Plan" was actually a misnomer. "It is more of a process than a plan," he said.

The master plan has been evaluated two times in the past 16 years, in 1976 and in 1983-84.

DeVito said the "snapshots in 1976 and 1983-84 were used to stop the action and see where the thinking was at that moment."

"The plan has not been followed strictly," said DeVito. "It's more of a guide."

DeVito said he would refuse to make excuses for the lack of parking, but he said many new parking spaces were created during the summer, specifically in the D-2 lot, behind the Alumni Center.

DeVito said in order for core-parking to increase, "drastic measures" would have to be taken, but he said UNH President Gordon Haaland is opposed to such measures, as were his predecessors.

He would not specify what kinds of drastic measures would be taken.

said he feels the SAFRA idea was a good one because "it allows excess PYR's to be used more effectively and because, in the case of organizations like STVN, it offers organizations a better chance to stretch large expenses over more years."

There are some kinks in the SAFRA system, he said, "but they're workable."

Russ Rebmann is an Army ROTC cadet at the University of Southern California. He's also a Pacific 10 Conference diving champion.

"What made me enroll in Army ROTC? I started thinking about my future. I can't dive the rest of my life. And to be a champ in business, you've got to be a leader and a manager."

"ROTC has given me a real taste of what it's like to be a leader, to be the man in charge. Handling that kind of responsibility is preparing me to be a leader in life."

"At first, I thought that ROTC training would get in the way of my other activities on campus. But it's helped me excel in all areas of school. The concentration, self-confidence and discipline I've devel-UNH's greatest RA award! Alexander 3rd men say—Joe Toner wins hands down!

I, Joe, being dead, do hereby present my last will and testament, leaving to Tracy: Invisible cigarettes for when mom's around, to Mary, a car to lean on. To Brad, safety pins that work. To Mike, the will to leave and a crewcut. To Mark M., Nerf-Doors, to Jeff, money. To Scot and Gene, the Mediterranean to Cris, a real cat. To Kirst, a new blouse. To Doug, shirts that stay on. To Chris and Steve, real fizzies and oatmeal (so stop whining.) To Stacie, cleaning service for your front step (ask Mike.) To Ross, a new typewriter, to Judi, well...what can you leave the diety with everything? To Portsie, a home-bmper sticker kit, to Tim, Mrk, and Andy, no more company for a while. To Robin and Janet, a fireplace-log holder. To Tori, more M & M's. And to Stephanie, all my love. Congratulations everyone involved with the 12th annual undergraduate prize productions.

Betsy—get psyched for a wild Manchester weekend! Is Manchester ever wild? We will have to take your new roommates for a visit some weekend. KJ Karla, Susan and Gina—Have a good weekend doing all of the fun things you have planned. Have fun typing up Jud Board, don't forget that Gina was INNO-CENT! Your fourth roommate.

Cindy—looking forward to the bridal brunch. Yum, yum, I love champagne. Your maid of honor.

If you are not doing anything before you go out and party tonight stop by at the Granite State Room from 7-9 and support Child Find and enjoy yourself at the Greek Night of Sin!

Kathy, I have been a good boy this week and done alot of studying.

Kenny Happy Belated Birthday#$$@!@

Well jen, do you remember that you asked for a long personal, here goes. I am wondering what to say to you in the pages of TNH but I can't say what I want to. If you think you'd like to really get personal we might be able to arrange something, then again maybe we won't. Is this the kind of personal you want? I could get more personal if you want but we really don't know one another that well so it could get a little sticky. This is getting tougher to write because I'm running out of ideas but I'll persevere. How are things at the Kappa Sig little sisters now that they don't have a house? You can tell I have nothing else to say so I'll end with a question. How about a beer some time.

Todd and Marion have graduated but their spirit is still here at UNH. If you miss them you can find them on the T-Hall lawn when there is a full moon howling in the throes of passionate embraces. Their younger brother and sister, (Todd's sister and Marion's brother) just entered as January freshmen. Their major is business but their real is in hotels.

You've taught to sign my name and yours, now I have to learn "How do I love thee? Let me sign the ways. Ken

Hey Staff: It was totally excellent to see you! Too bad we lost the game, but like wow, wasn't being in that college scene just the absolute awesome—est! I, well, really totally adored it. But you know, speaking honest-wise, uUNH wasn't all that hot. See you, like soon hopefully. Kris Hey Hirsh, what's up? I have to fill up some space in the personals so you have the good fortune of hearing from me. I think it's good fortune. How come we never get together? We should do something about that. I still think you just about the best kinda person around. We should go to dinner someplace decent instead of the local slime-holes in Durham. How about Portsmouth sometime soon. I'll call you I think. If you see this give me a call. It's an open invitation for you to collect anytime you've got the time. Take care, I'll talk to you soon, love Jim. Oh yeah, HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY.

WHEB presents the GREEK NIGHT OF SIN in the Granite State Room of the MUB tonight from 7-9. Everyone should come by and get into some good sin, bring your favorite friend or your best partner in the carnal lust we all enjoy so much of here in Durham. Well it won't be quite that much fun but you can help a great cause, CHILDE FIND. Help the Greek System help reunite families with missing children. Don't miss this chance!

Zena—You can't imagine how sorry I am about the "man" in the shower. It was stupid of me, but I know someday we'll look back on it and laught really hard. No? I owe you a dollar—Your sorry roomie.

The New Hampshire staff, you're really a great bunch of folks and you should all be proud of the work you do here. Don't ever think you're not appreciated. You're the ones that make this paper THE ONLY PAPER THAT'S WORTH ANYTHING AT UNH.

Miller said she felt, "the residents (of Babcock) handled themselves well," throughout the entire situation. "They really pulled together and acted as a community," she said.

Hart said Weiss had left UNH at the end of the semester and Bennett had left Babcock to live off-campus.

Hart said they were not evicted as Bennett had said in an earlier interview. Miller confirmed this, saying, "Bennett asked to be let out of his housing contract."

Peachy, Ms. Travel Agent, downright peachy. I've always wanted to spend my vacation in an airport, wondering why a hokey little plane business couldn't have lasted for another teensy-weensy week. Thanks, but no thanks.

Not that the airline's fate mattered—two hours later I learned the cheapo flights to San Juan were booked.

Suddenly pleasure in paradise has become disillusionment in Durham. There I was, a conscientious student planning the week of her lifetime, and my visions of long tall drinks and tall dark men (the calm kind with a similar aversion to tales of who-can-get-drunk-fastest-for-longest-vacations) had turned to visions of Brady Bunch re-runs in the living room of my own home.

Oh, I'll get over the disappointment. St. John probably wouldn't have lived up to my expectations anyway. And now that the pressure's off, and I know I won't burden my poor credit card with a whopper airline ticket, I can go out and buy those books I need.

Maybe there'll even be some money left over for a sunlamp and a bottle of Coppertone...

This powerhouse drama about a man who wrestles with his conscience is a classic. Brando plays a former boxer and pet of Johnny Friendly, the head of a corrupt longshoremen's union. Budd Schulberg's hard hitting screenplay is an engrossing story in which Brando discovers he's been betrayed by his own brother, falls in love with the murdered man's sister, and will be a marked man if he spills the beans to the authorities, and will have no peace if he doesn't...

Wildcat gymnasts hosting Invitational tomorrow

By Steve Langevin

It'll be "home sweet home" for the UNH women's gymnastics team tomorrow when they host the inaugural University of New Hampshire Gymnastics Invitational at 1 p.m., in the Lundholm Gymnasium.

Some of the finest collegiate gymnasts in the nation will take part in this event, as the participating teams are UNH, the University of Denver, the University of Pittsburgh and North Carolina State.

This will be the Wildcat's first home meet this season after opening the season with five road trips, the most recent to Temple University last week when they defeated the Owls 175.65-173.15. UNH's record stands at 4-9, but they have already faced four of the top ten teams in the country. The Wildcats are unbeaten in Lundholm Gymnasium in 23 outings since 1980.

"The girls are really looking forward to performing in front of the home crowd," said UNH head coach Gail Goodspeed. "I hope we get a big crowd because it will help the performances of our team."

The first major casualty of the season hit the Wildcats last week when freshman Elite gymnast Michele Sawyer broke her foot. Sawyer had just been named ECAC Gymnast of the Week following a first-place finish on balance beam at the Purina Cat Classic in Missouri.

Despite the loss of Sawyer, the Wildcats still sport a strong line-up, headed by senior co-captains Laura Cavanaugh and Diane Carlin. Cavanaugh is almost back to the form she displayed in 1983 before a knee injury forced her to miss most of last season. She broke her own school record on balance beam with a 9.4 at Temple and set a personal high, while just missing the school record by two-tenths, in the all-around with a 36.75. Carlin has an all-around best of 36.00 this season and has been the model of consistency for the UNH squad.

Because of the evenness of their teams, the Wildcats and Pittsburgh have developed a strong rivalry. Last season at the NCAA Northeast Regionals the Wildcats finished fourth, while Pitt took second.

This season the Lady Panthers have got off to a slow start, mainly due to injuries, including one to national qualifier Alisa Spector. Kim Calderone has taken over for Spector and sports an all-around high of 35.9.

UNH has only met Denver once, that being at the Denver Invitational last year when Denver finished first, with UNH second. Denver is led by Diana Detweiler, whose top score this season was a 35.6. Denver brings the highest team score of all the teams to the UNH Invitational, a 178.00 (UNH's high is 176.25).

NC State has also been hit by the injury bug as its school record holder in four events, Leah Ranney, is out. Sophomore Annette Evans has picked up the slack and has the all-around team-high of 35.45. Last year they were ranked among the top 25 nationally, while compiling a 17-9 mark and winning the Atlantic Coast Conference title.

"These are very talented teams," said Goodspeed. "The competition should be very strong. There's a chance it will come down to us and Denver for the top spot."

Koopman follows work ethic approach

By John Demeritt

The ideals of Reaganomics are partially based on more people working harder to better themselves and better America. No one typifies this particular political better than University of New Hampshire basketball player Dirk Koopman.

Koopman, a junior center for the Wildcats, has steadily improved his game since he first set foot on the hardwoods of Lundholm Gymnasium. Dirk was a back-up as a freshman and found it less than exciting. He got into a summer league in Worcester, Mass., to strengthen the tools of his trade, namely rebounding.

The easy-going blond pivotman enjoys the physical game and has always subscribed to the "work ethic" of constant hustle. "I like to band and hit inside," says the 6-8, 215-pounder. "It's a lot of fun. It keeps you in the game."

With six games remaining in the season, Koopman was averaging 9.8 points and 10.1 rebounds per contest. He led the Wildcats in scoring and rebounding and had 10 "double-double" games. His top games were against Yale, when he scored 19 points and hauled in 12 rebounds, against Fairfield, when he had 15 points and 14 rebounds, and Tuesday night against Dartmouth, when he scored 23 points.

"Dirk has probably given the most, and has been the most consistent player on the team," says assistant coach Bob Berry. "He's ready all the time."

Coming off back-to-back winning seasons, UNH has struggled this season. Koopman feels that this may be due to a lack of leadership. The Wildcat five is young, but everyone will be back for next season. The time for a floor general to surface is now.

Having considered Boston College, Brown and Fairfield, Dirk chose UNH for a few reasons, including the prospect of stepping into a situation in which he could play right away.

Koopman also felt that the campus and the people that make up the University had a major effect on his ultimate decision.

With the numbers that Koopman has been putting up, look for the price of UNH basketball stock to rise in the near future.

Indoor soccer squad second

By Steven Bracy

After traveling 150 miles north through a snowstorm to reach the Lyndon State Invitational Indoor Soccer Tournament, the team was not to be denied. The talented UNH squad captured 2nd place out of the 18 teams present losing only to UVM in overtime in the championship game.

At first it seemed that UNH would easily win the championship as Adrian Pfisterer fired home a shot between the UVM goalie's legs 30 seconds into the game. Instead of sitting on the one goal advantage, UNH kept the pressure on with a good build up offense. Pete Spiegel hammered a shot towards the upper corner but a great save by the keeper denied him the glory.

It became a game of attack, counter-attack with the play becoming very physical. Dave "Bubba" Barlow continually shut off the explosive UVM offense with great defensive help from freshman Slater Crosby. With approximately five minutes left in the game, UVM mounted an intense offensive surge. A rebound off Barlow was shot back into the goal area and only a goal line clear by UNH's Mark Goodman saved the goal. UNH started to look fatigued at this point and UVM began to dominate.

Two minutes away from victory, UVM scored. Barlow was unable to hold onto a blistering shot that bounced off him, and banked off the post to a UVM player who flicked it past a helpless Barlow. The score ended up 1-1 at the end of regulation time and a sudden death overtime would determine the Championship team.

After only 44 seconds of the overtime, UVM struck. Barlow came out to cut down the angle and made the initial save, but a UVM forward had followed up the shot and easily slipped it into the open net.

In the semi-final game UNH defeated a surprisingly good Hawthorne College team 2-1.

UNH put on the early pressure as Spiegel rattled the post with a rocket shot. The offensive play was superbly executed by UNH with great give-and-goes, drop passes for fullback shots, and precise crosses to open men. However the Hawthorne defense was equal to the challenge and thwarted UNH's attempts to score.

Finally UNH got a break, as a pass meant for Chas Gagne deflected off a Hawthorne player over to Rob Cardone who shot it into the lower left corner to give UNH the lead. Hawthorne battled back and tied the game when Tom Cloutier was stripped of the ball at midcourt and the ensuing 2-on-1 break resulted in an easy Hawthorne goal.

UNH regained the lead when Spiegel muscled in a mishandled cornerkick from Adrian Pfisterer. Hawthorne continued to apply pressure, but exceptional defense from Bob Ricard and travel to Boston Tuesday to play the Boston University Terriers. The Terriers, who defeated UNH 81-64 in Durham earlier this season, are currently holding down the fifth position in the conference with a 5-3 record. "This week off should do us some good," said Friel. "We need the R&R and it will also give us more time to prepare for B.U."

Wildcat grapplers control Plymouth State 31-18

Despite the loss of two wrestlers which resulted in forfeits in the 118 and 142 pound matches, UNH went on to win its wrestling meet last night against Plymouth State by a score of 31-18.

In the first match of the evening, after the forfeit at 118, Dave Beaulieu won by a technical fall over Bill Fiske at 3:11. The following match at 134 lbs. was hard fought with freshman Mike Castricone losing to Todd Grace of Plymouth, 12-7.

After the forfeit at 142 lbs., sophomore Paul Schwern came out and won against a tall opponent from Plymouth. "He was a good wrestler," said Schwern, "and I had to be careful because his height and quickness made it easier for him to get under me."

"During the first round, he reversed me for 2 points," Schwern continued. "After that, I realized that he could step over me easily so I went to upper body moves like bar and turns and half-nelsons and I threw some legs into him to neutralize him."

Schwern's tactics worked well as he went on to post a 10-3 decision.

Ted Curley of UNH put together a strong effort in the next match at 158 to defeat Gary Holden by a 16-7 margin and gain four points for the team.

UNH finally gained the lead for the first time in the match when junior Tim Weckworth beat Larry Mortensen of Plymouth by a technical fall to give UNH six points and a nineteen-fifteen edge going into the 177lb. match which ended tied at zero.

In the second round, however, Tom Gibbons of Plymouth picked up three points, one on an escape and two on a take-down, to open it up and eventually win 6-1 over UNH's Eric Lagerquist. The three points Plymouth picked up as a team brought them to within a point of UNH at 19-18.

In the 190 lb. match, junior Neal Zonfrelli, returning after missing several matches with a shoulder injury, sealed the victory for New Hampshire by defeating Paul Gabriel by a technical fall to gain six points and give UNH an insurmountable 25-18 lead going into the heavyweight bout.

There was no need to worry about that last match, however, as sophomore heavyweight Con Madigan put some icing on the team's win by scoring the only pin of the evening on Plymouth's Mark Lambert at 6:00.

"Two kids were hurt recently," said coach Jim Urquhart, "and we couldn't get replacements quickly enough for today. They (Plymouth) are a good school, but we've handled them well in the past few years. I knew we'd have to wrestle them well tonight and we won six out of eight matches, (outside of the forfeits) that were wrestled."

Men's basketball team edges Green

By Steve Langevin

He may not have been the high scorer, nor the leading rebounder, but Pat Galvin did all the little things that spelled victory for the Wildcat men's basketball team Tuesday night against Dartmouth, in Durham.

Galvin finished with six points and three rebounds, with two of these points coming when he hit both ends of a critical one-and-one with just 24 seconds remaining and the Wildcats ahead by only three points. Also, after a UNH missed free throw with 53 seconds left, Galvin battled for the rebound, ending up on the floor, but succeeding in deflecting it off a Dartmouth player and out of bounds.

"Pat Galvin had a great game for us tonight," said UNH head coach Gerry Friel. "He did all of the little things, making important free throws, as well as general all-around things that don't show up in the scoring column."

One player that was definitely in the scoring column for the 'Cats was center Dirk Koopman. He finished with a career-high 23 points, including 13 in the second half when UNH managed to finally pull away from the spirited Dartmouth team.

"We wanted to go inside to Dirk, because of the height advantage he had," said Friel. "We wanted to take the ball to the hoop."

The first half ended at 24-all, with UNH taking the ball inside against the Dartmouth man-to-man defense, and Dartmouth firing up perimeter shots against the Wildcats' various zone defenses.

It appeared the Wildcats might be in trouble early in the second half as Dartmouth raced out to a 34-30 lead in the first seven minutes, but UNH got baskets from six different players over the next seven minutes to overtake the Big Green by four 44-40.

With the score 53-51 in favor of the 'Cats, and just over one minute left, UNH guard Andy Jonhston made a penetrating move to the hoop and made a beautiful dish-off pass to Koopman, who put in the lay-up and was fouled. Koopman then converted the foul shot to make the score 56-51 UNH. After a Dartmouth miss, UNH's Greg Steele then connected on both ends of a one-and-one to give the 'Cats the extra cushion they would need to hold on for the 62-59 victory.

Steele (12 points) and guard Todd Black (10 points) both had strong second halves for the Wildcats, scoring eight and seven points respectively. Dartmouth was led by Bryan Randall (15 points) and Joe Kilroy (14 points).

"They (UNH) showed poise and stayed together tonight, although they still didn't make all the free throws they could have," said Friel. "It's always a great thing to beat Dartmouth. I'm really happy for the kids."

"This was a big win for us, because the season isn't over yet," said Galvin. "If we can get some momentum over the rest of the season, then we'll see what happens in the play-offs."

The victory lifts UNH's overall record to 4-18, while they remain in seventh place in the ECAC North Atlantic Conference Standings with a 2-9 mark. They will try to improve that Conference mark when they M.HOOP, page 30 two points. NU is 11-19, but must face Providence (12-12-20), BC (21-7) and BU (16-10-2) along with UNH.

The Wildcats still have Providence home and away, Lowell home and away, and Northeastern. The Northeastern game could decide whether they face Northeastern at Snively or in Boston in the playoffs.

UNH continues to get strong performances out of the freshman. The improved play of Leach, Rossetti, Tim Hanley, and Quintin Brickley has coincided with team's improved play.

Douris' goal was his team leading 21st, and his 40th point. Behind him are Richmond (19-20-39) and Peter Herms (9-30-39). Dan Muse (18-18-36), Leach (12-21-33) and Ralph Robinson (9-23-32) are right behind them.

Women's b-ball team downs BU

By Chris Urick

ATTENTION TEAMS OF THE SEABOARD CONFERENCE: The UNH women's basketball team is finally rounding the corner, so watch out! After suffering through a tough schedule, and heartbreaking defeats back in December, the Lady Wildcats are back on the winning path. Their latest casualty came Wednesday night as they knocked off Boston University 70-56, thus evening up their conference record at 1-1.

UNH broke this game open late in the first half. With the score 22-21, in BU's favor, UNH rallied to score the last twelve points behind some pure outside shooting and the intense inside play of Kelly Butterfield. Butterfield tied Michele Altobello for game high scoring honors with 16 points, but more impressively she pulled down 20 (not a misprint) rebounds.

"Kelly played obsessed last night, she's really becoming a force inside," said a happy head coach Cecelia DeMarco. "When the other players see her playing like that, it sparks them to play harder."

The second half saw UNH up their lead to 37-22, as Terri Mulliken and Altobello sank outside shots, but BU scored eight of the next ten points to cut it to 39-30. After Renee Kurowski cut UNH's lead to 45-36 with 13:59 to play, UNH ran off the next ten points to go up 55-36 with 9:11 to play. The keys during that stretch were the outside shooting and great all around play of freshman guards Melissa Pfefferle, and Altobello.

"They (Pfefferle and Altobello) are really developing into fine players, they're giving us the outside shooting and have really been the keys for us," said DeMarco.

UNH increased the lead to as much as 21 at 59-38 on a Terri Crete jumper, and held off BU the rest of the way to up their record to 7-12.

The team returns to action today at the Lundholm Gymnasium as they take on Brooklyn College. It's an important game, as UNH tries to gain momentum going into the playoffs.

"This conference win throws us back into the thick of things. It puts us at 1-1. What we do tomorrow night will show us how far we go the rest of this year," said an enthusiastic DeMarco. "Our goal at the start of the season was to play good ball against the tougher teams in December, and then when we get to the teams we're really competitive with in January and February, continue to play good ball and take it right into the playoffs. Anything can happen in a one game situation (in the playoffs)," added DeMarco.

So be warned Brooklyn, BU, Northeastern and the rest of the conference. The Wildcats are back and better than ever.

Eagle comeback stops men's hockey

By Chris Heisenberg

Despite a 48 save effort by Bruce Gillies, the UNH Wildcats dropped a 5-3 decision to Hockey East leading Boston College, last night at Snively Arena.

Gillies, who recorded 45 saves in UNH's 4-3 victory over BC last month, turned in another superb performance in last night's game.

"Brucie played a great game," said Freshman Mike Rossetti. "They had a lot of quality shots, especially in the second period."

UNH came out in front of a full house crowd and quickly went up 2-0. First, Rossetti stole a breakout and fed Scott Ellison who lifted the puck over BC's Scott Gordon.

Minutes later Steve Leach fed cross-ice to center James Richmond who scored his 19th goal in the same spot Ellison had just scored in.

"We came out flying, but they kept getting better as the game went on," defenseman Allister Brown said. "They may have been stale, but they capitalized on their opportunities in the game."

BC evened things in the second on goals by Tim Mitchell and Greg Boudreau, but Peter Douris answered with a powerplay tally with 31 seconds remaining in the period.

Again the opponents managed to score in the last minute of a period, as BC's Doug Brown lifted a rebound over Gillies while these UNH fans were still waving their "Go Wildcats" hands for Douris' goal.

In the third, Neil Shea flipped a centering pass from Hockey East leading scorer Scott Harlow over Gillies.

"Once they took the lead they tightened up defensively," Rick Lambert said. "They changed their forechecking, sending in the wingers."

"They changed their system," said Rossetti. "In the second we had trouble breaking out because they crashed their defensemen in."

At 6:28 Ken Hodge Jr. took an errant pass and passed a defender on the right. Hodge took the puck to the forehand and beat Gillies to the glove hand.

In the closing minutes UNH came within bounces of pulling closer, but bounces cost Ralph Robinson, Douris and Steve Leach scoring chances.
